MENTAL MARVEL HAS TWO BRAINS.

JACQUES INAUDI.

Jacques Inaudi Does Astonishing Problems in His Head that He Cannot Do on Paper—Four Sums at Once.

Wonder how it would feel to have two brains working both at once inside one's head? Over in Bayonne, N. J., they tell of a man who was a wonder, they thought, until he died of brain fever, brought on by trying heroically but vainly to multiply and add two different sets of figures mentally at the same time. But what chance would he have had with Jacques Inaudi, who is now demonstrating his marvelous mental powers at Proctor's Twenty-third street theatre? Inaudi does four problems at once mentally and has the answers ready before his manager even has the figures chalked on the blackboard. The problems were given off-hand yesterday morning by a special audience of physicians and scientific men, who had asked permission to test Inaudi's mental gifts. The demonstrator stood with his back to the blackboard and depended entirely upon his hearing and memory. Here are the problems:

A.M. 4,160, 7,657, 6,650, 2,339. Answer—19,596.
Multiply 487 by 316. Answer—153,892.
Divide 51,256 by 1,234. Answer—41.
Find the square root of 27,623,961. Answer—5,256.

The problems were first at Inaudi last at once, he simply repeating the figures once. Then, while his manager was copying the figures on the blackboard, Inaudi requested the members of the audience to tell the dates of their birth. As rapidly as given he told the day of the week on which each was born and the number of years, months days and seconds each had lived up to date. As soon as his assistant had copied the four problems Inaudi said, "I have finished," and rattled off the figures and answers without a second's hesitation. The results were then laboriously corrected and found to be absolutely correct. Then a problem in subtraction up to the sextillion mark was requested, and The Evening World reporter rattled off the following, jotting the figures down at random:

A Little Subtraction.
From ..... 427,834,260,329,327,142,310,523
Subtract ..... 257,325,189,249,237,165,100,229
Answer ..... 170,509,070,989,689,977,210,294

Inaudi, after once hearing them repeated off the two sets of figures and as quick as a flash gave the answer. It took his assistant several minutes to copy the problem after him. Inaudi was then requested offhand to raise 626 to the fourth power, and more quickly than the figures could be written down gave the answer 78,549,99,976. In like manner he gave instantaneous answers to the cube and square roots of numbers up to the millions. Lastly, and perhaps most marvellous of all, Inaudi rattled off the figures of every problem given him during the morning and the answers without a single error. If asked to repeat the same problems in a month's time he could do it with the same ease, one of the wonders of his brain being that a set of figures once stamped on it can be summoned up at will. After the exhibition a simple problem was pronounced for Inaudi by The Evening World reporter, no one else being present:

"Ready, Mr. Inaudi? Yes! Well, multiply 96,821 by 22,104."

On the instant he replied: "2,001,118,940."

The reporter spent ten minutes later verifying the answer.

He Has Two Brains.

To interview Mr. Inaudi in any but the figure language, an interpreter is necessary, as he speaks very little English. His manager, Mr. de Thorcy, consented to act as such. "What all Mr. Inaudi?" was asked, replied Mr. de Thorcy. "The famous Dr. Charcot said he would give a fortune to cut Inaudi's head open and see what is inside. No one knows, certainly the secret of his power."

"It is a natural gift, that is sure. He is not an education to speak of, but at six years of age he could do wonderful problems. He is an educated boy. His parents were poor, but he soon put them above want by travelling about giving exhibitions."

"Please ask him how he does it?" was requested, and Mr. de Thorcy put the question to Inaudi. "I cannot tell," replied Inaudi. "My memory is restricted solely to sounds and figures. For anything else I have a poor memory. These problems I can do in my head, but not on paper, and I must have the figures read to me; otherwise I fail."

"Can it be a peculiar while I am whistling. I can laugh, talk—do anything else but whistle while calculating. I should like to be a sound and figure boy. He said that I cannot remember even two lines of poetry."

"What is it that you can recite, say 50 figures and repeat them in a week if asked to do so?"

"If you told me beforehand that you would ask me to repeat them in a week, I would not inform me of your intention beforehand. I should like to be a sound and figure boy. He said that I cannot remember even two lines of poetry."
